

The Time for Concern is Now

By: Kevin Greer

For all intents and purposes; a man's existence may be divided into three phases.

The first begins at the creation of a person's soul (whenever that may be is not the matter being discussed here); and ends when; as an accountable being; he or she comes in contact with God's word or will in a form in which he or she can understand. In this phase, a person is not answerable for obedience or disobedience.

Let me now skip to the third phase; which begins at the moment of a person's death and runs on through eternity. Once you are dead physically you cannot act upon God's Word any longer and can no longer do His will. The time for that is all now past - - you are in God's hands - - for good or for ill. I submit to you that worrying about either of these two phases of existence is pointless at best and vain at the worst.

It is the second phase - the part of your life when you, as an accountable being, understand what God's will for you is - and what you do about it - that matters. That is the time - from the time you accountably know what God requires of you until you die that is important. All other concern is speculation about which you can do nothing.

The time for concern is now - what will I do with what I understand is God's will for me in the here and now - that will determine my eternal destiny.

The Devil is a master at getting us distracted. If he can keep us from obeying by keeping our minds off serving God right now, he has won the day.
